 Paris, 29th November 1839.

Dear Sir

With this you will receive the box which I took from you with the razors I bought of you, ^{of course empty now.} You will have the goodness to give, - as agreed upon - in exchanged for the returned box, the pen-knife of which you made me a present. I have requested the gentleman who will deliver this, to receive it for me and to forward it to Paris.

Probably I shall want some razors still, and then I shall employ the gentleman who is the bearer of this to communicate my wishes to you and act for me. Such being the case, if I forget to write to you, or shall be prevented from doing so by some circumstance or other, then you would be kind to give credence to his word, as you would do to my a letter of mine.

Yours very truly
 Leonard Niedzwiecki

Mr. Ellis,

 London
