Dear Mr. Kerrot,

Availing myself of your kind permission, I beg to send you three parcels to be forwarded to Paris, the cost to be defrayed by me and my friend who is principally interested in them. If the shape which we have given to these parcels, be not such as is usual among the mercantile people - you have full authority and you will be kind to cause them to be submitted to be ~~the~~ submitted to the process of transformation - every trouble chargeable on us.

You will have the goodness to give Nume pompilius reserved for me to Mr. Stansbury the bearer of the present. And look if you have Tetemague in italian of the London edition. I shall want for it for myself.

Yours ever truly
Leonard Niedzwiecki.

My dear Kermit,

Mr Pfeiler called on me one day, and, of course, did not find me at home because, as you know, I have a daily occupation which keeps me away the whole day. He then addressed to me a letter desiring me to pay him £ 1-8-0 Well. I answered him immediately and appointed next Sunday (1st of July) for him to call on me, as this day when I am free and at home; or if he preferred any of the ordinary days of the week, ^{It is from that} he must call on me before 10 o'clock in the morning, or after eight in the evening, to be sure to find me. - You would naturally suppose, that Mr Pfeiler, a man of business, acted according to the information contained in my letter. No such thing; he never applied - but in four days after the time appointed by me, that is, last Thursday, he sent me another note, saying, that he was sorry that the parcel was not my own, that he was sorry that I shall be obliged to pay the money out of my own pocket, that he was sorry

I have been thinking much lately of the manner in which we are engaged in the present state of the world. It seems to me that we are all engaged in a common struggle, and that the only way to success is to be united. I have seen too many instances of disunity and discord, and I am convinced that the only way to success is to be united.

that Miss Funtel & Warty would thereby be inconvenienced. - ~~app~~ I regarded this as an eloquent ebullition on the part of Mr. Feiler all would be right - nothing can be more eloquent than ~~off~~ misplaced sorrow, but it was a matter of business. Instead of overwhelming himself with sorrow why does he not tell me what ^{was the reason} he did not call himself nor caused any one to call on me on the day appointed by me for the payment. I waited the whole day for him - now he tells me that he will call on me on Sunday, but not that appointed by me. He chooses his own time: where the ~~error~~ ^{error} of insensibility and where is the cause for his wailings.
If this is the way in which Mr. Feiler conducts his business, I confess, I do not understand it, and I must add that his letter greatly surprised me so well at its contents as at the turn he has given to the affair. -

It is true the parcel is not my own, but why Mr Pfeiler should be sorry for that when I am not I would have paid the money into the hands of your messengers but I thought proper first ^{to receive} the money from the party who had entrusted the parcel to me. The course is very natural, - I was not called upon to pay my own money, and in that spirit I appointed a day for Mr Pfeiler to be sure of receiving the money. How in the name of wonder has the inconvenience complained of by Mr Pfeiler arisen I am totally at a loss to know. Besides you know that from the time of the delivery of the parcel at your house to the time of its delivery in Paris, five or not more weeks have elapsed. That was an inconvenience to the party whose interest it was to have the parcel delivered in Paris the soonest possible. Surely you must advise Mr Pfeiler to improve his style of writing, because it is intolerable as you

It is true that the fact is not only true, but Mr. Miller should be sorry for that when I am not I would have paid the money into the hands of your messenger, but though I have since the way from the fact that I have not returned the fact to any of the cases, it is very natural, I was not able to pay my own money, and in that spirit I appointed a copy for Mr.
Miller to be given of receiving the money.
I am in the name of an order has the in my name, and I am sorry of Mr. Miller I am sorry as a law to know.
I am sorry that from the time of the copy of the fact of your name to the time of the copy in your name I was not able to pay the money, but was an income in the fact of the copy in your name it was to have the fact of the copy in your name the recent fact of the copy in your name I am Mr. Miller to know the fact of nothing because it is not true as you with reference by his own address to me which I make -

Part I could not call on Mr. G. G. G. is easily explained. I had been told that I should find him at home the 11th of the great, my official duties for the past few days I have been unable to attend to any of the business will perceive by his note addressed to me which I enclose. —

That I could not call on Mr Pfeiler is easily explained. The distance between Clements Inn & Custom Square too is too great, my official duties too numerous and too pressing to allow me ^{the} necessary time to accomplish the one and the other without much trouble.

Believe me

Ever truly yours
